Who was Otto Hutt?

Ever since the 18th century, jewelry, watches and articles of daily use, mainly in gold and silver, have been produced in Pforzheim, known locally as the gateway to the Black Forest, both in small manufacturing companies and also on an industrial scale. The city has rightly been awarded the accolade "Gold City". Today about 80% of all jewelry exported from Germany still comes from Pforzheim. And this is where in 1920 a man established a company specializing in pocket utensils and fine writing instruments in silver. His name was Otto Hutt. Very much a child of his times, he was influenced by the design concept of the Bauhaus. The predominance of simple forms given over entirely to functionality were characteristic of his designs.

The individuality of an Otto Hutt writing utensil lies mainly in the high quality of its materials and workmanship. What makes it really unique, however, is a 6-digit numerical code engraved into the cap of each instrument. If this number is entered onto the reverse of the instruction booklet accompanying each writing utensil, the user can unmistakably identify their personal writing utensil at any time.

Each writing instrument a unique item

The Design 07 provides the flagship of the Otto Hutt line. It represents a new dimension, both in terms of its measurements and its writing quality. The brand's familiar spring clip has been refined even further to exactly match the shape and size of the writing instrument. The generous 18 karat gold nib specially crafted for the Otto Hutt fountain pen is the hallmark of the Design 07. It glides effortlessly over the paper with a silken flourish. It is a joy to write with and leaves you in no doubt that you are holding a truly precious writing instrument in your hand. The Design 07 from Otto Hutt is available as a fountain pen and as a rollerball in sterling silver or with an especially elegant lacquer coating on a solid brass body. In this process, several different layers are applied by hand before finally, every part is carefully polished. The result is a truly unique surface finish.

Perceptibly precious.

The Design 07 is supplied in a sophisticated box including spare cartridges, silver polishing cloth (lacquered models with microfibre cloth), converter and leather case.

The new Design 06 from Otto Hutt is a series of high-quality writing instruments made in Germany. In terms of their craftsmanship, the Design 06 models feature impressive barrels and caps which, like all other components, are meticulously crafted from solid material. The special spring clip is a distinctive feature of the Otto Hutt brand. For Design 06, this clip has been optimized even further. Its rounded contours and surfaces are milled from the solid material in a complex process using a diamond tool specially made for this shape. The end result is a perfect, organic contour. The impressive lacquered surfaces of the Design 06 are created using a special multilayer process. This gives all writing utensils in this series a delightfully pleasant, velvety feel.

The Design 03 writing system does full justice to Otto Hutt's product philosophy. The cap of the Design 03 Monogram series has a look based on a typographic variant. A sophisticated laser engraving process is used to create a unique pattern on the surface by systematically repeating the Otto Hutt name. All caps of Design 03 Rectangles are, as the name indicates, decorated with a systematically geometric arrangement of rectangles of various sizes. The result is a surface design with a classic look.

The aesthetic appeal of geometrical shapes

The caps of Design 03 in sterling silver are available in two versions: monogram and rectangular.

We offer barrels in four different color variations: silver, dark brown, golden and light blue. Design 03 is available as fountain pen, rollerball, ballpoint pen and pencil.

Design 02 unites classical styling and traditional craftsmanship. The quality of the material can be felt in the weight of the silver used to make the barrels and caps. The four writing systems of Design 02 are each available in the surface variants smooth, pinstripe and honeycomb guilloche, whereby the impressive design of the honeycomb guilloche in particular lends Design 02 an added element of exclusivity. For lovers of a little more extravagance, the smooth bicolor version offers that little extra.
